Microsoft's Windows Activation has traditionally required users to enter their product key when they first installed Windows on a new computer. Users who did not activate their computers could not use the software or make modifications, which was an inconvenience and a security risk. On Windows 10, Microsoft rebranded the Windows Activation process and the "activation key". A unique-looking product key that users can use to activate Windows 10 on a new computer. Microsoft has been adding new capabilities to the activation key. Windows 10 Digital license activation program will simulate a genuine digital serial product key inserted by a unique algorithm to bypass the Microsoft activation system, and it will permanently activate your windows. There is nothing to tell more about it, and its simple is that you do not need to re-do KMS activation after each 180days, or there is no need to set up scheduled tasks for automatic system activation. Just use this program, and the windows will be all yours!

As per your comments I wanted to see if anything has changed since I was having the same issues. I have been getting the same error code (0x80070002) when I installed the 30 day trial. I have the full version of the Media Creation tool. The only difference between my computer and his is that I have a copy of windows 8.1 that I added to the program after I did the upgrade to windows 10. I have spoken to Microsoft support numerous times and they have told me that they will upgrade my version and register to the VIP program. I think you may need to post your new microsoft account username/password. Then when you start the medai creation tool, select the device option that will start to create a digital license. Then go into the product key area and enter the key from the device that has your ms account info. Then once you have done that, it will ask you to enter a new or existing microsoft account username/password. That is all the info that is needed for this activation process.

windows 10 digital license activation program can activate windows 10 permanently with a digital license. this program will simulate a genuine digital serial product key inserted by a unique algorithm to bypass the microsoft activation system, and it will permanently activate your windows. there is nothing to tell more about it, and it's simple is that you do not need to re-do kms activation after each 180days, or there is no need to set up scheduled tasks for automatic system activation. just use this program, and the windows will be all yours! trying to find the windows 10 activation redirection servers via chrome dev tools is a bit tricky due to some redirections going on, from what i can tell this is to keep the activation servers from getting hacked. the right way to find the servers is to go to the hklm\software\policies\microsoft\windows\oss\lsa registry key and find it there. look for the windows 10 activation server primary server and the ones it points to, copy it into your clipboard, then paste it into chrome's dev tool's address bar and look for the redirect. note you have to open chrome with admin permissions in order to be able to see the registry key in the first place, this is because the policy key is marked as "protected" by the os. if you are trying to find out your activation server, this is what you need to do: dear brent and all staff, i have just been reading up on your blog about the official chinese release of windows 10 and read your w10 answer on the digital activation program. i would like to ask you about your own experience on the new activation and be your feedback how it is now. i do read your answers of the other questions and hope you could also answer this. i do understand that the pc that i will use will have the new activation program but i want to understand from a non chinese perspective. the reason for this is that a lot of the apps are still in chinese language, the apps are written in c++ and a lot of the drivers are in chinese. i hope you could give me some insight. 5ec8ef588b
